

ELECTION NAMES ED ROSKI TO TOP OFFICE

VALLEY STAR

LOS ANGELES VALLEY COLLEGE

Vol. X, No. 12 Van Nuys, California Thursday, December 4, 1958

Downs Wheeler By 174 Vote Margin

Ed Roski managed to cop the Student Body President's chair by receiving 174 more votes than his opponent in the special election held Monday and Tuesday to fill the vacated office. Out of the 509 ballots cast, 337 were for Roski, while Terry Wheeler received 163 votes. There were nine write-ins.

The election was held due to the recent resignation of Carl Bedwell who had to give up the post because he lacked the necessary number of units as stipulated in the student body constitution to hold the office.

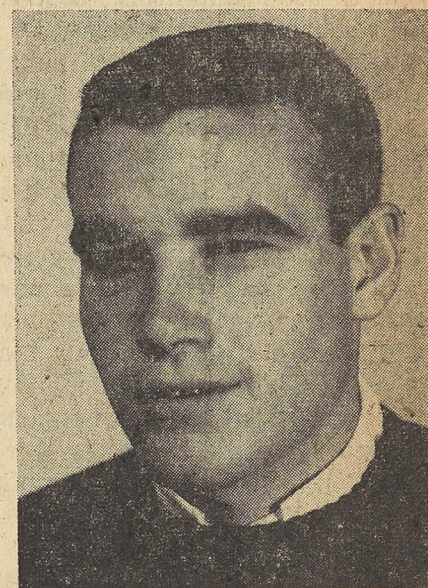

"I'm extremely happy that I will have the opportunity to serve Valley to my fullest extent and that I will be able to carry out plans I have formulated," said Roski after learning of his victory.

Roski told the Star that his main objective is to get the "ball rolling" for next semester's activities. This will include plans for Monarch Day, a dance and preliminary preparations on Fiesta.

Approximately 120 students voted in extended day classes, according to Ed Jennings, election committee chairman.

With his election to the top spot, Roski leaves the office of Parliamentarian vacant on the Executive Council. Applications for the office may be submitted to the council.

Wheeler will continue in his position as student body treasurer.

Holiday Plans Feature Much Yule Activity

Christmas program plans continue this week as Inter-Organization Council works on the activities to be included in the two weeks of Yuletide activity.

The events begin Monday when the clubs begin erecting greeting cards on the campus. Each club has been invited to make one in the form of a poster or other display, according to the tentative program planned by IOC. They will all go up during next week.

Newman Club members plan to erect a Nativity scene on the roof of the outdoor cafeteria during next week, according to the program.

Music will be played during the class breaks during both weeks of Christmas activities. Next week special observance will be given to Hanukkah as music from that holiday is played at 11 a.m. each day.

Plan Sports Night

Also during the first week of Christmas activities a sports night has tentatively been planned by the Ski Lions for Thursday.

International Club members, under the sponsorship of IOC, are planning a Christmas party and program for Saturday evening, Dec. 13 at 7:30 in the Women's Gym.

According to John Nazarian, president of the International Club, entertainment will include Ron Carr, the young prince from the "King and I," along with another singer, a ventriloquist, a magician and dancing. The student body is invited to the party, according to IOC plans.

Schedule Rally

Beginning the second week of Christmas activities is a rally in the student lounge when a representative from each campus club will hang a decoration symbolizing that club on a Christmas tree pre-decorated by the Lettermen's Club. American carols will be played over the loud speaker system that day.

Monday, Dec. 15, will also see the beginning of three campaigns on the campus. Members of the Education Club are conducting a "Toys for Tots" campaign. They are collecting soft toys for a hospital of mentally retarded children near Porterville.

Another campaign is being conducted to collect food for a needy family. Members of the Natural Science Club are making this collection.

Members of the Sport Car Club are also conducting a safe driving campaign during this time.

Lounge Displays New Yule Look

Yuletide decorations and a Christmas tree will give Valley's Student Lounge a new look next week.

Members of the Lettermen's Club will decorate the lounge and the tree Saturday afternoon, according to Mrs. Katherine Elledge, lounge hostess.

In addition to the Christmas adornments, several baskets will be placed around the lounge for a toy collection. Students are asked to bring in new or used toys they have no use for and deposit them in the baskets.

"We would like all students to contribute any decorations and toys they can give," Mrs. Elledge said.

All toys collected and the tree will be donated to either the Salvation Army or the YMCA, according to Mrs. Elledge.

Salome Now Dancing, Unveiling on Stage

TA Play Runs Thru Dec. 13

by TONY CIFARELLI

And Salome came in straightway with haste unto the king, and asked saying, "I will that thou give me by and by in a charger the head of John the Baptist."

Mark VI: 25.

By granting this wish, King Herod finally succeeds in persuading Salome to perform the dance of the seven veils.

Tickets for Salome, which opened Tuesday in the Little Theater, are still on sale at $1 each in the Little Theater box-office from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. daily and from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Runs Nightly

Salome will run nightly, except Sundays and Mondays, for two weeks, with the curtain going up at 8:15 p.m.

King Herod loves Salome, the daughter of the Queen by another marriage. Salome, denied the love of John the Baptist, asks for his head to be brought before her. King Herod, revolted by the sight of Salome kissing the mangled head of John, utters "Kill her" and walks off the stage as the play ends.

The Young Syrian, played by Jerry Ervin is also the victim of Salome's love as he takes his life after being rebuked in his passion for her.

Campbell Dances

The leads are taken by Sandra Campbell as Salome and Paul Boswell as King Herod. The main characters are portrayed by Georgiana Pierce as Queen Herodias and Lewis Weinstock as John the Baptist.

Robert Rivera, TA instructor, and Weinstock direct the play.

The dance of the seven veils is under the choreography of Suzie Jackson, who directs the dancing of the 10 girls and is also in charge of Salome's unveiling.

VEILS OFF—Salome, played by Sandra Campbell, performs her famous dance of the seven veils for the pleasure of her mother, Herodias, played by Georgiana Pierce and King Herod, played by Paul Boswell. Salome dances for the King after he grants a special wish to her.

Art Critic Glances At Modern Painting

Art critic Jules Langsner, prolific writer in many art and architecture magazines, will speak before the Athenaeum's third lecture audience Monday at 8 p.m. in the Men's Gym on the subject "An Art Critic Looks at Modern Painting." Langsner, who writes for six magazines in the United States and abroad, will try to relate the state of painting to present day civilization including the influences of science and the space age to today's painting, according to Flavio Cabral, art instructor.

Edits Magazine

As assistant editor for Arts and Architecture magazine he helps assemble the magazine devoted to modern architecture with blueprints and stress on the latest in buildings. Also in the magazine are art and music coverage.

Besides Art and Architecture, Langsner also pens his art criticism for the national magazine Art News in the United States and art columns in four European magazines. These include Meanjin, Australia; Goya, Spain; and Zodiac, Belgium.

He also is active in the upper echelon of art associations including the International Association of Art Critics and as art consultant for Fund of Adults Education sponsored by the Ford Foundation.

Teaches History

Not only in the writing end of the art business, he also teaches art history at the Choinard Art School in Los Angeles.

With all this activity he still manages to find time to write a book, which presently holds a key interest in his schedule. The book is entitled "Last Hundred Years in Art" and will relate recent science developments with field of art.

The Langsner lecture, which was originally scheduled for Jan. 13, was moved up to take the place of the "Duo Piano Concert" which featured Lorraine Eckardt and Evelyn Locke on the piano and Leonard Stein as conductor. This Athenaeum presentation will be presented on Jan. 12.

$503.32 Donated To Scholarship Fund

Scholarship was given a boost by $503.32 as a result of the proceeds from the Writers' Club Book Bazaar, according to Sylvain Bernstein, sponsor.

Of this amount, $118 will be placed in the general student body fund and $50 will be put into the English Club scholarship fund.

Approximately 1000 persons attended the bazaar held Nov. 20, according to Bernstein.

Valley Offers New Classes Next Term

Several new classes are being offered for the spring semester as counseling begins today. Appointments for counseling began Monday and will continue until Feb. 6, the last day to register. Approximately 90 per cent of the students from the fall semester will return to register for next semester, according to Robert Nassi.

Dean of admissions and guidance. The remaining students who register will come directly from high school, he said.

A list is posted outside the admissions office with the name of each student and his counselor.

Classes Not Guaranteed

"Classes are not guaranteed to any student until that student has been to the Student Store and paid the registration fee, picked up all registration cards and returned them," reminded Nassi.

Students who have questions concerning graduation requirements, university registration problem or any other problems should see their counselors today.

New classes being offered in the spring semester are chemistry 5, quantitative analysis; English 14, contemporary literature; geology 5, economic geology; geology 9, geologic surveying; health 12, safety education and first aid; management 13, small business management; mathematics 25, arithmetic for elementary school teachers; physical education 3, weight training (men); physical education 13, water safety instruction.

Courses Offered

Others are physical education 31, professional activities for coeds; philosophy 8, deductive logic; police science 21, California Penal Code; police science 25, vehicle code; police science 8, police administration; political science 2, modern world government; secretarial science 41, office methods; Spanish 9, Hispanic civilization; theater arts 4, advanced applied acting and zoology 6, elementary zoology and physiology.

Engineering Exams Scheduled Saturday

Students planning to enter the College of Engineering at the University of California, will be required to take a qualifying examination. It will be held Saturday at 8:15 a.m. in the UCLA Engineering Building.

Students desiring to take the examination at a state center, other than the Berkeley or Los Angeles campus, must submit an application requesting the change.

Finals Imminent

It's all over now, at least for a while. All the midterm grades have been given out, and Valley College students have had the Thanksgiving vacation to recuperate from any shocks received. Probably many promises were made to "improve those grades during the next 10 weeks."

School is in full swing again for the next three weeks until the Christmas vacation, and after that, the semester is going to slip away pretty fast. This is already being observed as spring registration becomes the major project on the campus scene.

Granted, it's easy enough to slide on through the semester, hoping to maintain the midterm grades, but in many cases that's not such a good idea. This is a good time to re-evaluate college life while readjusting study schedules and planning for a new semester. This is a good time to remember the original goal and achievements which were set up at the first of the semester.

What is expected from college? The first thing that comes to mind is to get an adequate education to continue to a four-year college or university or to earn a living. It is, of course, up to each individual student to decide what is meant by an "adequate education" and do his best to take proper steps to receive it.

Valley is a great place to make friends and form lasting associations with students and instructors. Classes are small enough that with just a little effort all the names can be learned in every class in a student's curriculum. This aspect of college life is the most important in many students' minds, and it's always a good thing to remember.

Along with learning is practical experience. Many fields require this, and Valley is becoming better equipped all the time to handle these requirements. Laboratory courses in the arts and sciences are to be considered when planning courses.

Midterm provides a real time for re-evaluation and future planning. It's up to each student to realize his potential and possibilities and finish up the semester in his own style.

Writers on Ball

You only get out of something that which you put into it. If this is the case with the Book Bazaar that was staged by the Writers' Club Nov. 20 then someone put a lot of thought and energy into the project.

The man behind the Book Bazaar success is Sylvain Bernstein, club sponsor and English instructor. Bernstein is the originator of the Bazaar and was also the leading light in the organization of the project.

Designed for the purpose of raising funds for scholarships, the Writers' Club is able to chalk up $500 in the ledger as profits from the bazaar.

An estimated figure of 1000 members of the community and campus attended the bazaar. When this number is compared to the turnout of past activities sponsored by the campus, it might be useful to the student government to sign Bernstein up as publicity chairman.

The Letterman and Behavioral Sciences Club added to the festivities of the day. The Lettermen handled the sale of Cokes and the Behavioral Sciences Club presented a contest to name the cutest baby from photographs of instructors.

A thundersous ovation should be given members of the Writers' Club and especially Bernstein for their work and enthusiasm on the project.

The Book Bazaar was not only useful in earning money for scholarships, but should stand as an outstanding success to clubs planning money making activities.

Hard work and persistence paid off for the Writers' Club. Will other clubs take the ball that the Writers started rolling and continue rolling it down the path by working hard at making their projects as successful as the Book Bazaar?

World's Week

Washington—The public health service is launching a broad research study on the effects of automobile exhaust as a health hazard, according to an announcement by Arthur S. Fleming, secretary of health, education and welfare. Two large irradiation chambers at the service's Robert A. Taft Sanitary Engineering Center at Cincinnati will be used in the study, he said. For the first time the effect of auto exhaust on the health of laboratory animals will be measured.

Salome's Performance Unveils Talent; Herod, Dance, Staging Rate Applause

by LIZ ALLEN
Star Staff Writer

Well narrated, but lengthy, the prologue to "Salome" almost seems to indicate that the play, too, would move slowly. Any hint of this soon vanished as Sandra Campbell gained the spotlight. Her performance of the passion-torn Salome is not only to be applauded, but had it been handled in any other manner, the entire production would have been lacking.

Next in line for praise is Paul Boswell. His portrayal of Herod was both commanding and convincing. Without the outstanding performances of Miss Campbell and Boswell the show would have failed to convey any feeling to the audience.

Georgiana Pierce as Queen Herodias, while strong in parts, gave no feeling in others. Her performance, however, improved as the show progressed.

The one player who should have aroused some pity, and certainly more emotion from the audience than he did, was Lewis J. Weinstein, as Jokanaan (John the Baptist). He spoke clearly and forcefully, yet a certain spark was missing that could have captivated more attention.

Jerry Ervin as Naraboth the soldier, proved disappointing. His efforts were evident. The effort in his characterization was his downfall. Playing opposite Ervin, Penny Branning, as Herodias' hand maiden, also seemed afflicted with conscious effort.

Almost as if reading their lines out loud, the two Jews, Ronald Hooker and Scott Meyers, projected a rather bored feeling. Paul Grant, the third Jew, stood out from the other two, but even his performance was not convincing. While they should have been arguing among themselves, they seemed to be looking for someone with whom to argue.

There seemed, in the performance of three soldiers like the performance of the Jews, only one fair performance, that of Tony Angelo. The other two were going half-heartedly through their lines.

A good performance and well interpreted characterization was given by Michael L. Grace as Tigellinus, the Roman emissary. His was the only supporting role that was really well done.

The entire play was done in one act and one scene. A stage setting which could have proved monotonous turned out to be very tastefully done, and was well adapted to the play.

Special lighting effects, seductive costumes, coupled with a good job of makeup, turned Susan Jackson's excellent job of choreography into an almost spectacular creation as the scantily costumed slave girls accompanied Salome in her famous dance. Any lack of talent Miss Campbell had in the art of dancing can be almost overlooked as she removed her seven veils, leaving herself in an almost unclothed state. Her performance was excellent, but the close-to-complete unveiling was rather extreme and unnecessary. A policy of suggestion rather than exposition would have been in better taste. Costuming, save for the unveiling, and makeup was well done.

Thanks to Miss Campbell and Boswell, who were a credit to the theater arts department, what could have turned out to be a slow moving, even rather boring production, turned out to be worth the dollar price of admission.

Stewardess' Letter Series Relates European Adventures

by MARIE GRAHAM

(Editor's Note: The following is the first in a series to be published in the Star. The series is based on excerpts taken from letters written to Dallas Livingston-Little, placement coordinator, by a former student.)

Adventure comes to one who looks for it, according to Joyce Sonnichsen, former student of Dallas Livingston-Little, Valley College placement coordinator. A chance meeting between the instructor and his former student on the eve of her departure for Europe led to her promise to write of the adventures she found there.

Joyce Sonnichsen comes from a middle-income family which moved to California from the Mid-West. She was graduated from Narbonne High School, in the harbor area, and from junior college. She then attended a school for stewardesses. Upon being graduated she was placed as a stewardess on a Pacific Ocean liner.

Her contact with the people from many lands while serving as stewardess motivated Miss Sonnichsen to return to school to study languages. While attending Long Beach State College she met and became engaged to a Norwegian student. After her fiancé's death, Miss Sonnichsen accepted an invitation to visit his family, the Opsahls, in Norway.

From Norway Miss Sonnichsen went to Spain, where she is continuing her study of languages in Madrid. She has given the Valley Star permission to publish excerpts from her letters, which tell of her experiences as an American student in Europe.

Starting with a hurricane at sea, her letters, written from New Year's eve to mid-November, include accounts of a visit to Hamburg, Germany; of a 2000-mile motor scooter trip, taken alone over the mountains of Norway; and of landlady trouble in Spain, in which she was called "capricious" (an uncomplimentary term in Spain), when she failed to follow the local dating customs.

The first letter, written New Year's eve, describes the crossing. Hokksund, Norway; Dec. 31, 1957.

"I had only one day in New York, but when you are alone in so large a city that is quite enough. Our ship,

JOYCE SONNICHSEN

the M/S Bergensfjord, left New York in a blinding snowstorm, only to run into a hurricane shortly thereafter. Luckily, my roommate was a Norwegian girl about my age. With three of the young men, also Norwegians who had lived in the US for several years, we formed the nucleus of a fun group. Never in my life have I danced so much.

"The hurricane hit us full force on Jan. 10, with winds so fast (over 140 mph) that our ship's instruments could not record them. The seas were higher than the masts, more than 45 feet high. Our captain told me that he had never experienced such tempests in 43 years of sailing. Had he waited only two minutes longer before turning our ship around to 'ride it out' we would have been inundated.

"The ship was damaged, but there were no serious injuries. My own shipboard group was having a marvelous time dancing. Had the ship sunk, we would just have gone down with her rather than leave the party so early.

"Life is rather different here in Norge, but I thrive on change. To meet people and experience new situations—new ways of thinking—that is completely exhilarating. People are so exciting to me that I believe I could live for a time in any part of the world, just to have an opportunity to really know what other peoples from a distinctly dissimilar milieu are thinking and feeling.

"There was snow when I arrived, but it melted and no more has fallen. Today it is minus 12 C. . . koldt, koldt, koldt. I am learning to speak Norwegian, but the Opsahls all speak English, and of course want to improve their 'American.' I must study on my own. Even at parties all the young people speak English to me. I have to insist or they will not speak Norwegian. They are kind and unkind at the same time."

Next week Miss Sonnichsen tells of a trip to Hamburg, and of an embarrassing experience on a street car.

IOC Plans Festivities

Christmas festivities on campus should be outstanding this year if plans the Inter-Organization Council have made burst into reality. From Dec. 8 through Dec. 19, the campus clubs have planned a program that will range from collecting Toys for Tots to Christmas caroling.

This program will top any other since I have been at Valley and probably will come close to beating any other holiday activity presented on the campus.

It is a known fact that it is easy to make plans, but not always easy to carry them out.

With the many clubs on campus and the memberships boasted by some clubs, the problem of carrying out the Christmas program plans should not be paramount.

The International Club deserves credit for its initiative in forging ahead with plans for a dance and party on Dec. 13. With some funds appropriated from the student body the activity is well on its way.

If the program is a success, Valley students will long remember Christmas 1958 on campus.

A difficult decision faced Monarch students when they cast their ballots in the special election this week. For the first time since I have been at Valley, students were, in my opinion, given two able candidates for the office of president.

In the past, one candidate has usually outshone the others, but this was not the case in Ed Roski versus Terry Wheeler.

Both of these students are full of enthusiasm and energy. They both want to serve the campus in any way possible, and most important of all, they have proved their ability in past performances.

With Roski as president, Wheeler will continue in his office as treasurer, an office which he has managed to organize in a manner that benefits the student body.

Although it is difficult to hold a special election, I feel the Executive Council is largely at fault for the disinterest shown by students toward the election.

A majority of the students did not know there was an election because of the lack of posters and other publicity. Apparently only about 10 students knew of the assembly held Monday to introduce the candidates to the student body, because that was the total number gathered in the gym to hear Roski and Wheeler.

Louis Berger was put in charge of the publicity of the election, but I feel this was a wrong move on the part of the council. Berger had enough responsibilities with his temporary position as chairman of IOC.

If the council had given the publicity problem to one of the other council members that aren't so "taxed" with responsibilities the election may have been more of a success.

I feel the Executive Council definitely fell down on its responsibility to the student body. In the future the governing body should keep in mind that it is a representative of the population of the Monarch campus and should run itself as such.

Conforming Non-thinkers

"We are mere school boys in scientific thinking compared to old Aristotle."

These words of Charles Darwin are apparently still as true today as they were then. Darwin was undoubtedly referring to the unwillingness of man to think for himself. If Darwin in his time felt that this was true, what would he say if he were alive today.

Man has steadily become a non-thinker. He has lost his individuality. Conform seems to be the pass-word of the times.

"The ancient Athenians were a thinking people; they knew what freedom means. They knew—not that they were free because their country was free, but that their country was free because they were free," says Edith Hamilton, head mistress of Bryn Mawr College from 1896 to 1922, in an article appearing in the Saturday Evening Post for Sept. 27, 1958.

Miss Hamilton is apparently applying this to the present day world.

Robert Louis Stevenson once said that a man should be able to spend three or four hours at a lonely country station with nothing to read, no one to talk to and not be bored. How many of us could do that today?

The ancient Greeks were probably the only original thinkers that man has produced. A Greek said that the earth revolved around the sun 1600 years before Copernicus thought of it.

Another Greek said that if you sail from Spain and remain on one latitude you will reach laid. This was written 1700 years before Columbus sailed.

The plots for most plays, novels and short stories can be found in ancient Greek works.

When are we as a free people going to rise to the challenge of these thinkers and originate some thought in the modern world?

Granted that most everything has been expounded on by someone at one time or another and that the time element was on the side of the Greeks, but must we give up the fight?

"The same is true of politics. They thought that out, too, from the beginning, and they gave all the boys a training to fit them to be thinking citizens of a free state that had come into being through thought," said Miss Hamilton.

In the novel, "The Ninth Wave," the author makes the statement that 45 per cent of the people vote Republican and 45 per cent of the people vote Democratic. In order to win an election the candidate must influence only 10 per cent of the people.

Many articles have been written recently condemning the "Beat Generation" and the conformity of the "Tvy League."

Are we as college students going to accept the challenge of thinking or succumb to the conformity that society seemingly prefers?

Valley College Hits Film 'Anna Lucasta'

by ALI SAR
 "Valley College is a very fine school."
 This phrase is in one of the great classics of the American theatre, "Anna Lucasta," stage hit which has now been produced by Sidney Harmon as a United Artists film release.

This comedy-drama was written by Philip Yordan 22 years ago. His characters are a Polish family in Chicago. The play remained unproduced for eight years. But then in June, 1944, after all the professionals turned it down, it was picked up in New York for a little theatre production by a group called the American Negro Theatre.

In one scene Anna, the daughter of the family, played by Eartha Kitt, says goodbye to her sailor-lover Danny, played by Sammy Davis Jr., and becomes engaged to Rudolph, a college graduate from the South. After the wedding Rudolph comes home and announces that he has a teaching position at Valley Junior College. The college's name is occasionally mentioned about five times.

Recently United Artists released another highly-publicized film named "I Want to Live." This is the true story of Barbara Graham, 32, the third woman legally executed in the State of California, June 3, 1955. As one of the newspapers says, "Her murder trial shocked the world!"

The star is Susan Hayward, appearing as the adult delinquent, Barbara Graham. This is Miss Hayward's first film in more than a year and her acting in this film is incomparable.

The screenplay is based on the court transcripts, personal letters of Barbara Graham and original material gathered by Edward S. Montgomery, Pulitzer Prize winning journalist of the San Francisco Examiner.

Marines Slated To Visit Valley

A Marine Corps recruiting officer will visit Valley campus to answer questions related to military service and the college student Dec. 8 and 9.

All interested students are invited to contact this officer in the Quad between the hours of 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. for information and interviews.

Students who are qualified may begin application for one of the Marine Corps officer training programs at this time, according to the introductory release.

Sayonara To Be Shown Here By Internationals Saturday

"I am not allowed to love. But I will love you if that is your desire..."

This is one of the scenes from the award-winning film, "Sayonara," which will be presented by the International Club in the Women's Gym Saturday at 7:30 p.m.

This is the first cinema scope film to be shown at Valley College. It is also in color.

Tickets are now on sale in the student store or from members of the International Club, according to John Nazarian, president.

A party will be held following the movie for members of the International Club and their guests.

"Sayonara" is a love story filmed in Japan. The film stars Marlon Brando and introduces a new Japanese star, Miiko Taka.

Co-stars are Red Buttons, Miyoshi Umeki, James Garner, Martha Scott, Richard Montalban and Patricia Owens.

The screen play by Paul Osborn is based on the novel by James A. Michener. Irving Berlin wrote the words and music to the title song.

TAE-Les Savants To Meet Tomorrow

Tau Alpha Epsilon-Les Savants, honor societies, will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 in Room 74, according to Donald Tuininga, president.

Tuininga called the meeting at an irregular date to discuss plans about a money-raising project, said Charles Kinzek, sponsor.

The suggestion for consideration is selling magazine subscriptions. Lester Pierce is in charge of organizing the project, according to Kinzek.

Portrait Schedule Nears Half Mark

Portraits are being photographed now through Dec. 19 for the Crown, Valley College yearbook. Students planning to graduate in January and June should report to Room 33A, according to the chart below, said Bernard Peters, Crown editor. Women students should wear dark sweaters, and men's required apparel is a dark suit or coat, tie and white shirt.

Hours for portraits will be from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1 p.m. daily.

The schedule for students according to initial of last names is as follows:

Dec. 1-5—J, K, L, M; Dec. 8-12—N, O, P, Q, R, S; Dec. 15-19—T, U, V, W, X, Y, Z.

Speakers Meet Wednesday

An organizational meeting of the Forensic Society will be held Wednesday at 3 p.m. in the Student Lounge. Anyone interested in speech and participating in speech activities, such as speech and debate tournaments, may attend this meeting, according to Linda Johnson, acting chairman of the society.

Experience in speaking is not a necessary requirement to join the society, said John Buchanan, Forensic Society adviser.

A social period with refreshments and dancing will follow the meeting.

Valley College Newman Club during December.

A photographer from the Crown, Valley's yearbook, will take a group picture of the club members for the annual at the weekly business meeting of the Writers' Club Saturday, 8 p.m., at 6026 Colbath, Van Nuys, according to Mrs. Eva Blaine, club president.

Wald, an instructor at the University of Southern California for the past eight years, will discuss techniques of TV and screen writing. He has written several screen plays, including the prize-winning "The Naked City." At present he is working on the forthcoming movie "Al Capone."

He has also done TV scripts for such top shows as Climax, Playhouse 90 and the Alcoa Hour. His latest script is the Shirley Temple Christmas program, "Mother Goose," to be shown on television December 21.

The meeting is open to members and their escorts. Students who wish to join the club may contact Sylvain Bernstein, sponsor, in Room 6.

French Club Goes To Play at UCLA

Representatives of the French Club recently attended a dramatic performance of Jean Ravine's classic, "Britannicus" which was presented at UCLA.

Heading the theater-going group were Jayne Sherman, club president; Joe DeCunzio, entertainment chairman; and Dr. Robert Oliver, club sponsor.

Patricians Entertain With Cof-fiesta

Lace tablecloths, silver service and flowers decorated the faculty dining room the morning before the Thanksgiving holidays as the Patricians, campus service organization, entertained with their second annual cof-fiesta.

Personal invitations were sent to Valley faculty and staff members to participate in the affair, according to Mrs. Alice Elconin, president of the Patricians.

Bite-size assorted fruit and cinnamon rolls and doughnuts were served.

Grades are important all through school, not for their direct value as a primary achievement, but as a reflection of the knowledge gained during the period of learning just passed. At Valley College recognition is given to those students maintaining high scholastic rating in the form of membership in the dual honorary scholastic societies, Tau Alpha Epsilon and Les Savants.

But mere recognition of excellence in scholastic endeavors is not the chief aim of the two societies, for they combine in their activity schedule a blend of scholarship, service and social functions.

Among their service activities are the tutoring list and semesterly scholarships. The tutoring list names outstanding students in the societies who have offered, upon entering the groups, to tutor in a particular subject.

Lists Posted

These lists are now posted in classrooms and students desiring to be tutored in any of the listed courses may make a telephone appointment with the tutor listed for the subject.

After the appointment has been made, a 50-cent donation is requested to be paid at the Student Store to cover the tutoring period.

Although the donation is not mandatory, it helps increase the funds toward the group's scholarships. The receipt of the 50 cent donation may be presented to the tutor at the teaching session.

CHARLES KINZEK
 Sponsors Scholars

Present sponsors of the dual societies are Miss Lorraine Eckardt, music instructor, and Charles Kinzek, mathematics instructor; Miss Eckardt, however, has announced her resignation as sponsor and next semester her post will be filled by Miss Aura-Lee Ageton, economics instructor.

Miss Ageton was selected by the executive board of the group and has willingly accepted the sponsorship, according to Don Tuininga, TAE-Les Savants president.

Officers of TAE-Les Savants, in addition to Tuininga, include Lester Pierce, vice president; Jo Volpe, recording secretary; Laura Cox, corresponding secretary; Harry Knott, treasurer; and Judy Friedman, historian.

The groups, which meet together and have the same officers, usually convene Sunday evenings several times during the semester. They will meet tomorrow, 7:30 p.m., in Room 74, however, and probably will continue to meet Fridays for the remainder of the semester, according to Tuininga. This is due to conflicting schedules of numerous members, he said.

Initiate Members

Several new candidates for membership are to be initiated at tomorrow's meeting, said the president, as they were unable to attend regular initiation ceremonies held recently where 65 new members joined the group.

Membership in the societies requires a 3.3 average in at least 12 units of work in one semester for Les Savants and a 3.3 grade point average in at least 12 units of work for two consecutive semesters for membership in Tau Alpha Epsilon. It is also necessary that the applicant for membership be recommended by an instructor.

The group first met under the name of the Valley College Honor Society, Feb. 24, 1950. At that time the sponsor was Dr. Blanche Bloomberg, English instructor. Dr. Vierling Kersey, founding director of the college, was also an adviser.

The honor society strove to maintain a balance of scholarship and social activities. In spring, 1950, the society held its first initiation under the name of Les Savants and membership totalled about 25.

TAE Affiliates

In fall of that same year, the group became affiliated with Tau Alpha Epsilon, Alpha chapter, at Los Angeles City College and became known as the Beta chapter of TAE here.

The organization continued growing and in January, 1952, the society set up its book loan fund of $35, loaned to students requiring this financial help upon request. In the same year the tutoring service was inaugurated.

Dr. Bloomberg resigned her sponsorship in fall, 1956, and Miss Eckardt took her place. Kinzek joined her as co-sponsor in fall, 1957. In spring, 1957, the societies set up their TAE-Les Savants scholarship of $75, awarded for scholarship, financial need and recommendation.

Marchers To Parade In Van Nuys

Representing Valley College in the annual Bethlehem Star parade Saturday at 7:30 p.m. on Van Nuys Boulevard will be the Monarchettes, women's drill team, and the Marching Band, according to Earle Immel, band instructor.

This is the first time the band and Monarchettes have marched in the procession, which will be televised. The parade is being sponsored by Ministerial Association of Van Nuys.

All floats will depict scenes from the nativity from the mature life and ministry of Christ. Approximately 40 floats are expected to enter the parade, which will feature Santa Claus riding to the theme of "Santa Claus Is Coming to Town."

The band and Monarchettes have been asked to march Dec. 13 in the Junior Rose Bowl Parade for the first time. A ticket to the Junior Rose Bowl football game as well as a free lunch will be given to all the participants.

Star Sports

Touche

Like Brooklyn Dodger baseball fans were once classed as a special breed among humans and LA's Ram football fans are classed as a special breed among humans, so should Valley College's basketball fans be classed.

Loyalty has many ways of being shown. In Brooklyn it was considered an act of loyalty to boo the local team, hate the local manager and throw pop bottles (only empty ones) at the umpire.

Some million plus Angelenos annually show their loyalty to the Rams by assuming the role (free of charge) of head coach. In the Coliseum, it is considered loyalty to cry "we want Wade" (last year), "we want Wilson" (this year) and "we don't want Gillman" (every year).

Dodger fans had and Ram fans have their own way of showing loyalty to their hometown charges. So, too, have the Valley basketball fans a way of showing loyalty to their Green and Gold charges.

Monarch basketball fans are fast establishing a reputation of gaining great joy from antagonizing the censored out of opposing rosters.

The ends to which Valley cage fanatics will go seem to be as limitless as the distances they travel to accomplish their purpose.

Bakersfield felt the sting of Valley's venomous antagonism on three occasions last year, although directly involved only once.

It all started at the Bakersfield hosted tournament one year ago tomorrow. From there it built through a regularly scheduled conference game, reaching a climax at the season ending Metro All-Star game.

Three times Valley rooters made the trip to Bakersfield to show loyalty through antagonism. Trips were also made to other games, including one in San Diego. The extent of Valley's antagonism was always greatest away from home, but was never forgotten in the local gym.

Caught without the aid of a microphone and noise-makers at the conference game in Bakersfield last season, the 30-odd Lion boosters present began a search.

First they captured two Renegade yell-leading megaphones. These were returned unused at the request of two lovely young Bakersfield yell-leaders. This seemed humorous to Bakersfield rooters.

Thwarted in their first attempt to gain a noise maker and antagonize, Valley executed a near perfect "boring" of the Renegade band's bass drum. This seemed not too humorous to Bakersfield rooters, and the drum was returned at the request of some 25 young husky 'Gade men.

Valley rooters still had no noise-maker, but they no longer had need of one. Bakersfield was antagonized, out-yelled and beaten 65-57.

Long Beach's Dick Markowitz took the blunt of the Valley onslaught, but the entire conference felt the Monarch's presence at the All-Star game.

Markowitz was ridden unmercifully by Valley fans trying to rub salt in his wound of losing a conference scoring duel to Bill Wold by two points.

The pay-off came when the hand-full of Monarchs cut loose with a yell for their two All-Star Team representatives, Wold and Jim Malkin, at half-time.

"Yea Green, Yea Gold, Yea Malkin, Yea Wold," screamed Valley, arousing the wrath of the rest of the conference.

It's quite a reputation that this year's Valley fans must maintain.

The Monarchs showing as probable title contenders should make the job much easier.

College where he was co-captain of the track team in his senior year. He competed in the pole vault.

In addition to his basketball and gymnastics duties, Caldwell is adviser to the Knights, men's service organization, and maintains a full load of instruction in physical education.

The likeable 40-year old mentor lives in Northridge with his wife, Evelyn, a son, Vic, 16, now playing varsity basketball at Northridge Junior High; a daughter, Judy, 13; and a daughter, Christina, 6.

Caldwell is now in his third season as Valley's basketball coach and his fourth year at Valley College. He started his coaching assignment here as gymnastics coach and still holds that spot. His gymnastics teams have lost only two conference dual meets since 1955 and were undefeated in the 1957 season.

Experience in coaching was gained by Caldwell in seven years as a high school coach at Washington, Jordan and Hollywood. His 1951-52 basketball team at Jordan won the Marine League championship and went to the semi-final round in the city play-offs.

He assumed the post of Monarch cage coach in 1956, succeeding Ben McFarland who was named Athletic Director. The first season under Caldwell found Valley finishing fourth in the conference standings with a seven-win seven-loss record. Last year his team boasted second place in the standings with an 11-3 mark.

"The team has looked ragged and disorganized at times and they have looked very good at other times. Generally speaking, I'm not disappointed and we will iron-out the rough spots," said Caldwell in commenting on this year's squad as they have shown in winning three of four non-conference mixes.

In the coming season Caldwell will have a problem that he was not faced with last season in that he is the mentor of a team that will be favored in most of its games.

Corsairs Top Metro Bowl Game Entrants

Santa Monica City College's Corsairs, the fifth team in as many years to win the Metropolitan Conference football championship, heads a list of three Metro squads appearing in junior college post-season bowl games.

Bakersfield, slated to appear in the Shrine Potato Bowl game Saturday, and Long Beach, victors by a 28-8 count over Antelope Valley in the Alfalfa Bowl, round out the list of Metro bowl representatives.

Representing the west in the Junior Rose Bowl game Dec. 13, Santa Monica will face an undefeated, untied Northeast Oklahoma squad.

Led by six possible jaycee all-American prospects, the Corsairs romped through nine regularly scheduled games en route to their first championship in 28 years of football competition and the JRB berth.

Lloyd Winston, ranked as one of the all-time great junior college backs, gained 961 yards in 113 carries for an 8.5 seasonal average. End Dave Washington, who caught nine touchdowns passes; quarterback Pat Young, who completed 80 of 134 passes for 1252 yards and 13 TD's during the year; Ivory Jones, a returning all-conference center; fullback George Pierovich; and tackle Marv Marinovich round out the list of all-American prospects.

In scoring 359 points to their opponents' 127 during the 1958 campaign, the Corsairs have now won 11 straight contests including two at the end of the 1957 season.

In going unbeaten for the first time since they started playing football in 1930, this year's Corsair team became the second in the history of the school to lose less than two games in a single season.

Beaten but once in a 30-23 titanic with Santa Monica, Bakersfield's Renegades will appear in the Potato Bowl game for the second straight year when they face undefeated Riverside in Bakersfield Memorial Stadium.

Bakersfield wound up the season ranked as the top junior college team in the country despite the fact that they fell before Santa Monica. The Renegades spent eight of the nine-week season on top of the All-American Grid Index rating, leaving the spot for a one-week period following the Santa Monica loss.

Overcoming an 8-0 deficit early in the first quarter, Long Beach roared back with 14 points in the same quarter and 14 more in the third stanza to down previously once beaten Antelope Valley. The other Antelope loss was a 33-6 bouncing by Riverside. Valley scrimmaged both Antelope Valley and Riverside before the campaign began, dropping both by two-touchdowns to one margins.

Valley Hosts Reseda Uni Playoff Game

Valley JC's football field will be the site for Reseda and University High Schools when the two schools pair off tomorrow at 2:30 p.m. in the quarter-final round of the Los Angeles city high school football playoff.

Reseda grabbed the Valley League football championship sporting an undefeated record with one tie, this to Birmingham near the end of the season. The Regents posted wins over such tough Valley opponents as North Hollywood, Canoga Park and Van Nuys highs.

All told, three junior colleges and one four-year college have been selected as sites for contests this weekend. Playoff games which will be played this week are Jefferson vs. Banning at El Camino, tomorrow at 8 p.m.; Huntington Park vs. North Hollywood, Saturday at Occidental College at 2 p.m.; and Marshall vs. Fremont at East LA, tomorrow at 2:30 p.m.

WSC Restricts Sport Eligibility

In a move to clamp down on proselyting within its ranks, the seven-member Western State Conference of junior colleges has adopted two resolutions restricting the eligibility of athletes.

The ruling prohibits athletes under 21-years old from competing at a school until after he has been enrolled at the school for at least one year unless his parents establish residence within the school's drawing area.

A second resolution prohibits WSC schools from using athletes from outside of the school's normal drawing area within the state.

Schools in the WSC include Ceritos, Compton, Glendale, LACC, Pasadena, Pierce and Ventura.

Al Hunt, Valley's head grid coach, said of the ruling, "It is a great ruling. It brings the schools back on an equal basis."

Johnson Issues Plea To Golf Prospects

A plea for all Valley College men who consider themselves prospects for the spring semester golf team to meet tomorrow morning in the Men's Gym was issued by E. Y. Johnson, Monarch golf coach.

Johnson says that he would like all golf prospects to meet with him sometime tomorrow morning for the purpose of sign-ups and aid in scheduling.

A tentative schedule shows Pierce as the season opener at Valley Feb. 13, and Valley, traveling to Bakersfield Feb. 16.

Valley, Modesto To Battle In First Round Tilt Today

Bill "Hopalong" Wold is back, hot as a presidential campaign and rarin' to get back to his "beloved" Bakersfield College Gym where he will once again lead his Valley basketball mates into the Bakersfield cage tournament today and tomorrow. Fresh from their second loss of the current campaign, an 87-75 affair with the consolation trophy.

In losing to Ventura for the fifth time in as many meetings of the two schools through the years, Valley put on one of the most poorly played basketball performances in many a day.

Passing with the precision of a junior high squad, defending with the alertness of a drunk, and running with the stamina of a two year old, the Lions were as lucky as ever to have Wold around. The 12-point margin of loss could well have been much more if it hadn't been for Wold.

Aside from Wold, the only other bright spot for Valley was John Berberich's 15 markers, 10 coming on well executed tip-ins.

Wold, who sat out three weeks of practice and the season opener against the Alumni, returned to action in time to tally 34 markers as the locals downed Reseda 84-76 and lost to COS 89-81.

Ventura was stung to the tune of 22 points by Wold, running his season total to 56 and his career total to 751.

A shoulder separation sustained during a pick-up game early in November was the cause of Wold being side-lined. But, the main cog in Valley's hoop machine is back, continuing the antics that earned him All-Metropolitan Conference player-of-the-year and All-Southern Calif. honors last year.

Leading Valley to the consolation championship in his previous Bakersfield tourney appearance, Wold scored 100 points in three games. In addition, he scored 20 points in a conference tilt at Bakersfield, bringing his total to 120 in four contests for a 30-point a game average.

His 40-points against Mount San Antonio in the consolation finals was enough for Bakersfield Gym and Valley single-game scoring marks.

Valley begins its quest for the tourney crown against Modesto at 11 a.m. today. Should the Lions nab a win they will meet the winner of the 9:30 a.m. Bakersfield-Taft tussle at 7 p.m. tonight.

A loss to Modesto would move the Monarchs into the consolation bracket to meet the Bakersfield-Taft loser at 9:30 a.m. tomorrow.

Valley has lost all of its three meetings with Modesto in past years. After dropping an 89-68 contest to San Jose in the opening round of the Bakersfield event a year ago, the Lions rallied to drop Fresno 89-82 and Mt. SAC 100-75 on their way to

Full Schedule Busies Cage Coach Caldwell

by FRANK HALL
Star Staff Writer

"We have the potential to win the state basketball championship this season if we get those few lucky breaks that all championship teams must get," said Ralph Caldwell, Monarch basketball coach.

Caldwell has for a nucleus on his squad Jim Malkin, Bruce Powers and Bill Wold, all returning first string lettermen from last year's second place Metropolitan Conference team.

Wold, who was the conference player-of-the-year last season, was developed from an unheralded high school cager into a basketball by-word in junior colleges by Caldwell in one season.

Caldwell is now in his third season as Valley's basketball coach and his fourth year at Valley College. He started his coaching assignment here as gymnastics coach and still holds that spot. His gymnastics teams have lost only two conference dual meets since 1955 and were undefeated in the 1957 season.
